(amended text)

GENERAL PART

CHAPTER ONE (i.)

BASIC PROVISIONS

Basis and Limitation of Criminal Law Enforcement

Article 1

(1) Criminal offenses and criminal sanctions shall be prescribed only for acts threatening or violating personal liberties and human rights, as well as other rights and social values guaranteed and protected by the Constitution of the Republic of Croatia and international law in such a manner that their protection could not be realized without criminal law enforcement.

(2) The prescribing of specific criminal offenses, as well as the types and the range of criminal sanctions against their perpetrators, shall be based upon the necessity for criminal law enforcement and its proportionality with the degree and nature of the danger against personal liberties, human rights and other social values.

Principle of Legality

Article 2

(1) Criminal offenses and criminal sanctions may be prescribed only by statute.

(2) No one shall be punished, and no criminal sanction shall be applied, for conduct which did not constitute a criminal offense under a statute or international law at the time it was committed and for which the type and range of punishment by which the perpetrator can be punished has not been prescribed by statute.

Mandatory Application of More Lenient Law

Article 3

(1) The law in force at the time the criminal offense is committed shall be applied against the perpetrator.

(2) If, after the criminal offense is committed, the law changes one or more times, the law that is more lenient to the perpetrator shall be applied.

Principle of Culpability

Article 4

No one shall be punished if not found culpable of the committed offense.

Types of Criminal Sanctions

Article 5

(1) Criminal sanctions which may be prescribed by statute and applied against the perpetrator are: punishments, non-custodial sanctions (judicial admonition and suspended sentences), security measures and educational measures.

(2) The duration of any type of criminal sanction shall be determined by statute and no criminal sanction shall be prescribed, pronounced or applied for an indefinite time.

General Purpose of Criminal Sanctions

Article 6

The general purpose of prescribing, pronouncing or applying criminal sanctions is that all citizens honor the legal system and that no one commits a criminal offense, and that perpetrators of criminal offenses do not continue acting in a similar way in the future.

Limitations in Prescribing the Contents of Criminal Sanctions and their Application

Article 7

In determining the contents of criminal sanctions and the manner of their application, the freedoms and rights of the perpetrator of a criminal offense may be limited only to a degree corresponding to the type of the criminal sanction applied and its special purpose determined by law, without causing corporal pain or mental suffering, inhuman or degrading treatment, while observing human dignity and personality.

Institution of Criminal Proceedings

Article 8

(1) Criminal Proceedings for criminal offenses shall be instituted by the State Attorney's Office on his own motion in the interest of the Republic of Croatia and all its citizens.

(2) Exceptionally, for certain criminal offenses, it may be prescribed by statute that criminal proceedings shall be instituted by a private charge, or that the State Attorney's Office shall institute criminal proceedings following a motion.

Right to Rehabilitation

Article 9

(1) The perpetrator sentenced by a final judgment, or to whom a non-custodial measure has been applied, or whose sentence has been remitted after a certain period of time has passed and under conditions provided by law, shall have the right to be deemed a person who has not committed a criminal offense, and his rights and liberties shall not differ from the rights and liberties of persons who have not committed a criminal offense.

CHAPTER THREE (iii)
CRIMINAL OFFENSE

Manner of Perpetrating a Criminal Offense

Article 25

- (1) A criminal offense can be committed by an act or an omission to act.
- (2) A criminal offense is committed by omission when the perpetrator, who is legally obligated to avert the consequence of a criminal offense defined by law, fails to do so, and such a failure to act is tantamount in its effect and significance to the perpetration of such an offense by an act.
- (3) The punishment of a perpetrator who commits a criminal offense by omission can be mitigated, except in the case of a criminal offense which can be committed only by failure to act.

Time of Perpetration of a Criminal Offense

Article 26

A criminal offense is committed at the time the perpetrator acts or ought to have acted, irrespective of the time when the consequence, which is a material element of the criminal offense, occurs.

Place of Perpetration of a Criminal Offense

Article 27

- (1) A criminal offense is committed both at the place the perpetrator acts or ought to have acted, and at the place where the consequence, which is a material element of a criminal offense, fully or partially occurs or, in the case of a punishable attempt, ought to have occurred according to the perpetrator's expectation.
- (2) In the cases of complicity, the criminal offense is committed at the place specified in paragraph 1 of this Article and at the place the accomplice acts or ought to have acted, or at the place where the consequence, which is a material element of a criminal offense, ought to have occurred according to the expectation of the accomplice.

Insignificant Offense

Article 28

There shall be no criminal offense, although its material elements have been realized, if the offense is obviously insignificant with regard to the manner of the perpetrator's conduct, his culpability, and the incurred consequence to the protected good and the legal system.

Self-Defense

Article 29

- (1) There shall be no criminal offense when the perpetrator acts in self-defense.
- (2) Self-defense is a defense which is absolutely necessary for the perpetrator to avert an imminent or immediate unlawful attack on him or on another person.

(3) If the perpetrator exceeds the limits of self-defense, the punishment can be mitigated, and if the excess occurs due to strong irritation or fright caused by the attack, the punishment can be remitted.

Necessity

Article 30

(1) There shall be no criminal offense when the perpetrator has acted in order to avert from himself or from another an imminent danger which could not have been averted in any other way, provided that in doing so a lesser harm was done than that which had been threatened.

(2) The perpetrator is not culpable if he has committed an illegal act in order to avert from himself or from another an imminent danger which could not have been averted in any other way, provided that in doing so the harm that is done is not disproportionately greater than that which had been threatened.

(3) If, in the case referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, the perpetrator was avoidably mistaken about the circumstances which exclude culpability, he shall be punished for negligence if, for the committed offense, the Code prescribes punishment for negligence.

(4) The defense of necessity is not available if the perpetrator was obligated to expose himself to danger.

Coercion or Threat

Article 31

(1) There shall be no criminal offense when the perpetrator acts under the influence of irresistible coercion.

(2) If the perpetrator commits a criminal offense under resistible coercion or threat, the provisions of Article 30 of this Code shall apply, treating such coercion or threat as a danger.

Article 32

There shall be no criminal offense when an authorized person uses force in accordance with the law.

Attempt

Article 33

(1) Whoever intentionally commences to execute a criminal offense but does not consummate it shall be punished for the attempt only of a criminal offense for which a punishment of five years of imprisonment or a more serious penalty is prescribed by law, while the attempt of another criminal offense is punishable only if the law expressly provides for the punishment for an attempt.

(2) The perpetrator who attempts to commit a criminal offense shall be punished as if the offense had been completed, but the punishment can also be mitigated.

(3) If the perpetrator attempts to commit a criminal offense by means that are inappropriate to accomplish the ends sought, or against an object upon which a criminal offense could not have been committed, the court may remit the punishment.

Voluntary Abandonment

Article 34

(1) If the perpetrator voluntarily abandons the execution of a punishable attempt, the court may remit the punishment.

(2) The perpetrator abandons the execution of a punishable attempt if he voluntarily interrupts further execution of a commenced criminal offense, aware that, according to all circumstances, he could have completed the act, or, if after the completion of such an act, he prevents the occurrence of consequences.

The Principal and Accomplices

Article 35

- (1) The principal is a person who commits a criminal offense by his own act or omission or through another agent.
- (2) Co-principals of a criminal offense are two or more persons who, on the basis of a joint decision, commit a criminal offense in such a way that each of them participates in the perpetration or, in some other way, substantially contributes to the perpetration of a criminal offense.
- (3) Accomplices are: the instigator and the aider or abettor.
- (4) The instigator and aider or abettor are accomplices who, without control over the perpetration of a criminal offense, contribute to its perpetration by instigation or by aiding and abetting.

Punishment of Accomplices

Article 36

- (1) Each co-principal shall be liable in accordance with his intent or negligence, while the instigator and the aider and abettor shall be liable in accordance with their intent.
- (2) The material or personal characteristics of the principal, which represent the material elements of a criminal offense or influence the severity of the prescribed punishment, shall also apply to accomplices.
- (3) Strictly personal circumstances for which the law excludes culpability and allows for the remission, mitigation or aggravation of punishment may apply only to the principal or accomplice to whom they pertain.
- (4) The punishment of an accomplice who voluntarily prevents the perpetration of a criminal offense may be remitted.

Instigation

Article 37

- (1) Whoever intentionally instigates another to commit a criminal offense shall be punished as if he himself committed it.
- (2) Whoever intentionally instigates another to commit a criminal offense whose attempt is punishable shall be punished as for the attempt of such a criminal offense even if the offense itself has not been attempted.
- (3) In the case of an inadvertent attempt of instigation, the court may remit the punishment of the instigator.

Aiding and Abetting

Article 38

- (1) Whoever intentionally aids and abets another in the perpetration of a criminal offense shall be punished as if he himself committed it, but the punishment may also be mitigated.
- (2) The following shall in particular be deemed acts of aiding and abetting: giving advice or instructions on how to commit a criminal offense, providing the perpetrator with the means for the perpetration of a criminal offense, removing obstacles for the perpetration of a criminal offense, giving an advance promise to conceal the criminal offense, the perpetrator, or the means by which the criminal offense was committed, as well as concealing the traces of a criminal offense or the objects procured by the criminal offense.

CHAPTER FOUR (iv)
CULPABILITY

Mental Incapacity

Article 40

(1) A mentally incapable person shall not be culpable and no criminal sanction shall be imposed on such a person. A mentally incapable person may be placed in a psychiatric institution in accordance with the provisions of the Law on the Protection of Mentally Disturbed Persons.

(2) A mentally incapable person is one who at the time of the perpetration of an illegal act was incapable of understanding the significance of his conduct, or cannot control his will due to mental illness, temporary mental disorder, mental deficiency or some other severe mental disturbance.

Voluntary Intoxication

Article 41

A perpetrator who, due to the consumption of alcohol, narcotic drugs or other substances, culpably brings himself into a state in which he is incapable of understanding the significance of his conduct or of controlling his own will shall not be deemed mentally incapable if, at the time of bringing himself into such a state, his intent encompasses the offense committed, or if at this time he is negligent in regard to the offense, provided that the statute prescribes punishment for such a form of culpability as well.

Diminished Mental Capacity

Article 42

The punishment of a perpetrator may be mitigated if at the time of the perpetration of a criminal offense, due to a condition referred to in Article 40, paragraph 2 of this Code, the perpetrator was of substantially diminished mental capacity, provided that the mental deficiency was not voluntarily produced.

Punishability for Intentional and Negligent Conduct

Article 43

(1) Only the intentional perpetration of a criminal offense is punishable, unless a statute expressly provides punishment for negligent conduct as well.

(2) A more severe punishment which the law prescribes for a particular consequence of a criminal offense shall be inflicted only when the perpetrator acted at least negligently with regard to such a consequence.

Intent

Article 44

(1) A criminal offense may be committed with direct (dolus directus) or indirect intent (dolus eventualis).

(2) The perpetrator acts with direct intent when he is aware of his conduct and desires its perpetration.

(3) The perpetrator acts with indirect intent when he is aware that he might commit an offense and accedes to it.

Negligence

Article 45

(1) A criminal offense may be committed by advertent or inadvertent negligence.

(2) The perpetrator acts with advertent negligence when he is aware that he might commit an offense but carelessly assumes that it will not occur, or that he will be able to prevent it from occurring.

(3) The perpetrator acts with inadvertent negligence when he is unaware that he might commit an offense, although under the circumstances and according to his personal characteristics he should and could have been aware of such a possibility.

Mistake of Law

Article 46

(1) The perpetrator who, for justified reasons, does not know and could not have known that the offense is prohibited shall not be culpable.

(2) If the mistake is avoidable, the punishment may be mitigated.

(3) A mistake shall be deemed avoidable if anyone, and thus also the perpetrator, could have easily grasped the unlawfulness of the conduct, or if the perpetrator was supposed to know the relevant regulation because of his profession, occupation or service.

Article 48 deleted \(OG 105/2004\)

Mistake of Fact

Article 47

(1) A perpetrator does not act intentionally if at the time of the perpetration of a criminal offense he is not aware of one of its material elements.

(2) If the perpetrator's mistake regarding the material elements of the criminal offense is due to his negligence, he shall be culpable insofar as the statute prescribes punishment for such an offense also when committed by negligence.

(3) The perpetrator shall not be punished for intent if at the time of the perpetration of a criminal offense he mistakenly assumed that the circumstances existed, which, had they actually existed, would have rendered his conduct lawful.

(4) If the perpetrator is mistaken as to the claim of legal justification out of negligence, he shall be punished for the perpetration of a criminal offense, provided that the statute prescribes punishment for such an offense also when committed by negligence.

CHAPTER FIVE (v) PUNISHMENT AND SENTENCING

Types of Punishments

Article 49

(1) Perpetrators of criminal offenses may be punished by fine or imprisonment.

(2) Imprisonment shall be imposed only as the principal punishment.

- (3) A fine may be imposed both as the principal and a supplementary punishment.
- (4) For criminal offenses committed for personal gain, a fine may be imposed as a supplementary punishment, even when it is not prescribed by law, or when the law prescribes that the perpetrator is to be punished by imprisonment or by a fine, while the court pronounces imprisonment as the principal punishment.

The Purpose of Punishment

Article 50

By taking into consideration the general purpose of criminal sanctions, the purpose of inflicting punishment is to express the community's condemnation of a committed criminal offense, to deter the perpetrator from committing criminal offenses in the future, to deter all others from committing criminal offenses, and by the implementation of statutory punishments to increase the consciousness of citizens of the danger of criminal offenses and of the fairness of punishing perpetrators.

Fine

Article 51

- (1) A fine shall be imposed according to daily income. It amounts to at least ten and not more than three hundred daily incomes, except for criminal offenses committed for personal gain when the maximum fine may amount to five hundred daily incomes.
- (2) The court shall determine the number of daily incomes on the basis of mitigating and aggravating circumstances referred to in Article 56 of this Code other than those relating to the financial situation of the perpetrator.
- (3) When determining the amount of a daily income, the court shall take into account the perpetrator's total income, his property and his family obligations. If the perpetrator of a criminal offense does not have any income but is the owner of property or property rights, the court shall determine the daily income by a free estimate in accordance with the value of such property or property rights.
- (4) In the proceedings for the issuance of a criminal order (Article 446 of the Criminal Procedure Act), the court shall take the average daily income in the Republic of Croatia as the daily income of the perpetrator. The average daily income is determined and published every six months by the Supreme Court of the Republic of Croatia on the basis of the official data of the State Bureau of Statistics.
- (5) The court ruling shall specify the number and the amount of daily incomes. The final amount of the fine is the product of multiplying the number of daily incomes by the amount of the daily income.
- (6) The court shall determine the period for the payment of the fine which shall not be less than thirty days nor more than six months.

Substitution of Fine

Article 52

- (1) The fine shall not be collected by force.
- (2) When the fine is not paid in full or in part within the period determined in the judgment, the court shall, without delay, bring a decision to substitute the fine by imprisonment.
- (3) The fine shall be substituted by imprisonment in such a way that one daily income is substituted by one day of imprisonment, with the proviso that the maximum duration of imprisonment, substituting the fine, shall not exceed twelve months.

(4) If the convict pays a part of the fine, the duration of imprisonment shall be reduced proportionally, and if he pays the fine in full, the execution of the penalty of imprisonment shall be suspended.

Imprisonment

Article 53

- (1) Imprisonment may not be shorter than thirty days or longer than twenty years.
- (2) For the most serious forms of criminal offenses, life imprisonment may be prescribed (hereinafter: life sentence).
- (3) Long-term imprisonment shall never be prescribed as the sole principal punishment for a specific criminal offense.
- (4) Long-term imprisonment shall not be imposed on a perpetrator who, at the time of the perpetration of the criminal offense, has not reached the age of twenty-one years.
- (5) The imprisonment of juveniles shall be imposed under the conditions prescribed by a special statute on young perpetrators of criminal offenses. The imprisonment of juveniles is in its purpose, nature, duration and manner of execution a special penalty of deprivation of liberty.
- (6) When imprisonment without a minimum duration and with a maximum duration of three years is prescribed for a criminal offense, together with such a penalty, a fine shall be prescribed as an alternative punishment.
- (7) Imprisonment shall be assessed and imposed in full years and months, and in full days if its duration is up to three months.

Substitution of Imprisonment

Article 54

- (1) When the court assesses and imposes imprisonment for the duration of up to six months, it may at the same time decide that such punishment, with the consent of the convict, be replaced with community service.
- (2) The decision to replace imprisonment with community service shall be based upon the assessment that, considering all the circumstances determining the type and range of the sentence, the execution of imprisonment would not be necessary to realize the purpose of punishment, and (at the same time) a non-custodial measure would not be sufficient to accomplish the general purpose of criminal sanctions.
- (3) Community service shall be determined for a duration proportional to the imposed imprisonment, from a minimum of ten to a maximum of sixty working days. The period for performing community service shall neither be shorter than one month nor longer than one year.
- (4) In assessing the duration of community service, as well as the period for its performance, the court shall take into consideration the pronounced imprisonment which is being substituted and the perpetrator's possibilities regarding personal circumstances and employment.
- (5) When, upon the expiry of the determined period, the convict has not completed or has only partly completed the community service, the court shall render a decision on the execution of imprisonment for a period proportional to the unfulfilled community service.
- (6) The replacement of imprisonment with community service may also be applied in the case of substituting a fine with imprisonment pursuant to Article 52, paragraph 3 of this Code, when such an imprisonment does not exceed six months.

(7) Placement in community service (the type and the place of work) shall be made by the agency for the execution of criminal sanctions, taking into consideration the capacities and the skills of the convicted person.

Conditional Release (Parole)

Article 55

- (1) A convict may be released from the institution after having served at least one-half of the term or, exceptionally, after having served one-third of the term to which he has been sentenced, under the conditions determined in the Statute on the Execution of Criminal Sanctions.
- (2) A convict serving life sentence may be conditionally released if he has served twenty years of imprisonment. Any deprivation of liberty resulting from the perpetration of a criminal offense is considered to be a served sentence.
- (3) A conditional release shall last until the day the pronounced sentence has expired and in the case of a convict serving life imprisonment, fifteen years from the day the conditional release has begun.
- (4) If the convict, while on conditional release, commits one or more criminal offenses for which he is sentenced to imprisonment of six months or to a more severe sentence, the court which has pronounced the sentence shall revoke the conditional release and, by applying the provisions of Article 60 of this Code, pronounce an aggregate sentence which will include the part of the sentence the convict has already served.
- (5) The court may also proceed in the way described in the previous paragraph when pronouncing a sentence of imprisonment shorter than six months. If the court does not revoke the conditional release, it shall be extended for the time the convict has spent serving the sentence of imprisonment.
- (6) The conditional release may not be revoked if two years have passed from the expiry of the periods specified in paragraph 3 of this Article.

A General Rule on the Selection of the Type and Range of Punishment

Article 56

In determining the type and range of punishment within the limits established by law for the committed criminal offense, the court, bearing in mind the purpose of punishment, shall take into consideration all the circumstances which result in a less or more serious punishment for the perpetrator of a criminal offense (the mitigating or aggravating circumstances) and in particular the following: the degree of culpability, motives for committing the criminal offense, the degree of peril or injury to the protected good, the circumstances under which the criminal offense was committed, the conditions in which the perpetrator had lived prior to committing the criminal offense and his abidance by the laws, the circumstances he lives in and his conduct after the perpetration of the criminal offense, particularly his relation towards the injured person and his efforts to compensate for the damage caused by the criminal offense, as well as the totality of social and personal grounds which contributed to the perpetration of the criminal offense.

Mitigation of Punishment

Article 57

- (1) The punishment prescribed by law for a criminal offense may be mitigated when the statute expressly prescribes so, or when the court holds that, in view of the existence of particularly obvious mitigating circumstances, the purpose of punishment may also be attained by a more lenient punishment.
- (2) The limits of mitigation are the following:

- a) if, for a criminal offense, imprisonment for a maximum of three years or less is prescribed, regardless of the minimum duration, a fine may be imposed instead of imprisonment;
- b) if, for a criminal offense a minimum duration of imprisonment for one year or less, and a maximum of three years or more, is prescribed, the sentence may be reduced to the legal minimum of imprisonment;
- c) if, for a criminal offense, imprisonment for at least two years is prescribed, the sentence may be reduced to six months of imprisonment;

Remission of Punishment

Article 58

- (1) The court is obligated to remit the perpetrator of the punishment for a committed criminal offense when expressly provided by law.
- (2) The court may remit the perpetrator of the punishment when the law provides for such a possibility.
- (3) When the law provides for the possibility of remission of punishment, the court may impose a more lenient sentence and in doing so, it is not obligated to adhere to the limits prescribed by Article 57, paragraph 2 of this Code.

Special Cases of the Remission of Punishment for Criminal Offenses Committed by Negligence

Article 59

The court may remit the perpetrator of the punishment if he commits a criminal offense by negligence in the following cases:

- a) if the consequences of the criminal offense affect the perpetrator so severely that the punishment is unnecessary to achieve its purpose, or

Concurrently Adjudicated Criminal Offenses

Article 60

 - a) if, for a concurrently adjudicated criminal offense, the court assesses a life sentence, it shall be the only sentence pronounced,

Criminal Offense Arising Out of the Same Transaction

Article 61

- (1) The provisions of this Code regarding concurrently adjudicated criminal offenses shall not apply to a criminal offense arising out of the same transaction.
- (2) A criminal offense arises out of the same transaction when the perpetrator intentionally commits a number of identical unlawful acts or unlawful acts of the same type against the same injured person in which the manner of perpetration, the temporal connection and other material circumstances connecting them constitute a whole.
- (3) When a criminal offense arising out of the same transaction comprises offenses of the same statutory description, the court shall choose the type and the range of the sentence prescribed for such a criminal offense. If criminal offenses of the same type are at issue, the court shall choose the type and the range of sentence prescribed for the most serious of these offenses.

The sentence, or the part of the sentence which the convict has already served, shall be included in the pronounced aggregate sentence unless the aggregate sentence is life imprisonment (Article 60, paragraph 2), point a).
- (2) When a convict is tried for a criminal offense committed while serving a sentence of imprisonment or juvenile imprisonment, and, if the remaining period to be served on the basis of the previously pronounced sentence cannot achieve the purpose of punishment, the court shall not apply the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article, but shall determine the type and the range of punishment for the new criminal offense irrespective of the previously pronounced sentence.

(3) When a convict, while serving imprisonment, long-term imprisonment or juvenile imprisonment, commits a criminal offense for which a statutory sentence of up to one year of imprisonment or a lesser sentence is prescribed, a disciplinary measure shall be applied.

NON-CUSTODIAL MEASURES

Types of Non-Custodial Measures

Article 64

Non-custodial measures are: admonition and suspended sentence.

The Purpose of Non-Custodial Measures

Article 65

(1) The purpose of admonition is to give the perpetrator of a criminal offense a reprimand when, considering all the circumstances regarding the offense and the perpetrator, a punishment does not need to be inflicted to achieve the purpose of criminal sanctions.

(2) The purpose of a suspended sanction is to give the perpetrator a reprimand which achieves the purpose of criminal sanctions by pronouncing a sentence without executing it.

Admonition

Article 66

- (1) An admonition is a criminal sanction which can be applied as a non-custodial measure to the perpetrator of a criminal offense for which a punishment of imprisonment of up to one year or a fine is prescribed if, according to the perpetrator's manner of acting, his culpability and the caused consequence, the offense is of an especially light character, and when, considering all the circumstances regarding the perpetrator and particularly his relationship towards the injured person and the compensation for damage, the conditions for the attainment of the purpose of non-custodial measures without punishment are fulfilled.
- (2) For a criminal offense for which imprisonment of up to three years or a fine is prescribed, the statute may provide for the application of admonition when other conditions specified in paragraph 1 of this Article are fulfilled.
- (3) Admonition may also be applied for concurrently adjudicated criminal offenses, if for each offense the conditions specified in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article are fulfilled.

Suspended Sentence

Article 67

- (1) A suspended sentence is a criminal sanction which, as a non-custodial measure, consists of the pronounced punishment and the term within which such a punishment shall not be executed if the convict does not commit another criminal offense and under other conditions prescribed by law.
- (2) The court may apply a suspended sentence when it establishes that even without the execution of the punishment the realization of the purpose of punishment can be expected, particularly taking into account the relationship of the perpetrator towards the injured person and the compensation for the damage caused by the criminal offense.
- (3) A suspended sentence may be applied to the perpetrator of a criminal offense for which the statute prescribes the imprisonment of up to five years and for criminal offenses for which the imprisonment of up to ten years is prescribed, if the provisions of mitigation of the punishment have been applied.
- (4) A suspended sentence may be applied to the perpetrator of a criminal offense as specified in paragraph 3 of this Article when the court, by determining the type and the range of the punishment, pronounces imprisonment not exceeding two years or a fine, either for a single offense or for concurrently adjudicated offenses.
- (5) A suspended sentence shall postpone the execution of the pronounced punishment for a period of time which cannot be shorter than one or longer than five years, and such time shall be assessed in full years only.
- (6) When under conditions of this Code, both imprisonment and a fine are pronounced, the court may decide to postpone only the execution of imprisonment.

Obligations of the Person Under Suspended Sentence

Article 68

- (1) Together with imposing a suspended sentence, the court may order the following obligations: that the perpetrator of a criminal offense shall compensate for the damage he caused, that he restitutes the gain acquired by the offense, or that he fulfills other statutory obligations regarding the perpetration of the offense.

(2) The period for the fulfillment of an obligation referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be determined by the court within the assessed period of probation.

Revocation of Suspended Sentence

Article 69

(1) The court shall revoke a suspended sentence and order the execution of the pronounced punishment if the convicted person, within the period of probation, commits one or more criminal offenses for which the court has imposed imprisonment of two years or a more serious punishment.

(2) The court may revoke a suspended sentence and order the execution of the pronounced punishment if the convicted person, within the period of probation, commits one or more criminal offenses for which the court has imposed imprisonment of up to two years or a fine.

(3) When, in the cases referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article, the court revokes a suspended sentence and orders the execution of the pronounced punishment, it shall act pursuant to the provisions of this Code on the assessment of punishment for the concurrently adjudicated offenses.

(4) When the court does not revoke a suspended sentence (paragraph 2), it may for the new criminal offense impose a punishment or a suspended sentence. If it imposes a suspended sentence, both the previously pronounced and the newly pronounced punishment shall be treated pursuant to the provisions of this Code on the assessment of punishment for the concurrently adjudicated offenses, but a new term within which such an aggregate punishment will be suspended shall be determined.

(5) The court shall revoke a suspended sentence and order the execution of the pronounced punishment if the convicted person, within the course of the probation period, does not fulfill the obligations imposed on him in cases where he could have fulfilled them. In the case of the impossibility of fulfilling the obligations, the court may replace such obligations with others, or relieve the convicted person of the obligations.

(6) The court shall revoke a suspended sentence when, after its imposition, it finds that the person under a suspended sentence has previously committed a criminal offense, if it deems that the conditions required for the application of a non-custodial measure would not have existed had this criminal offense been known. Both the pronounced punishment in the case of revocation of a suspended sentence and the punishment for the previously committed criminal offense shall be treated pursuant to the provision of paragraph 3 of this Article. If the court does not revoke a suspended sentence, it shall act pursuant to the provision of paragraph 4 of this Article.

(7) Regardless of the reasons for revocation, a suspended sentence may not be revoked after a period of two years has elapsed.

A Suspended Sentence With Supervision

Article 70

(1) When the conditions to impose a suspended sentence exist but the circumstances in which the perpetrator lives and his personality suggest that he needs assistance, protection or supervision in order to fulfill the obligation not to commit another criminal offense within the period of probation, the court may impose a suspended sentence with supervision.

(2) The supervision shall be performed by experts of a governmental body responsible for the execution of criminal sanctions.

(3) The supervision may last throughout the period of probation, but may also, by court order, be canceled sooner if the requirements for assistance, protection and supervision have ceased to exist.

Special Obligations Accompanying Supervision

Article 71

When pronouncing a suspended sentence with supervision, the court may, beside the obligations specified in Article 68 of this Code, order the perpetrator to fulfill one or more obligations during the probation period, such as:

- a) to undertake vocational training for a certain profession which he chooses with the professional assistance of a probation officer;
- b) to accept the employment which corresponds to his professional qualifications, skills and actual abilities to perform the working tasks suggested or offered to him by a probation officer;
